

FLOOR BUYER'S guide

Swisstrax

Not all modular tiles are created equally. Swisstrax has been producing extreme-duty plastic tiles for a couple of decades, starting out by making tiles for industrial purposes that could stand up to the demands of forklifts. Easy to pop together and take apart, Swisstrax also offers a 12-year warranty and a multitude of colors to mix and match and redesign as you like. They also offer Teak Trax for light-duty outdoor patio-type use.

BEHR

World famous for paints and finishes, BEHR has gotten into the garage flooring game with their Premium 2-Part Epoxy Garage Floor Coating. Available in two colors, Tan and Silver-Grey, 36 tints are offered to enable a custom blend. BEHR also offers decorative color flakes to add a little zest to the floor. BEHR claims their finish will resist motor oil, gas, antifreeze, brake fluid, salt, and hot tires, when properly installed. The coating is ready for use immediately after mixing requiring no priming, and the semi-gloss finish is easy to clean and has a built-in non-skid element adding a level of safety.

Ultimate Garage Floors

Epoxy Flake Flooring brings industrial strength to your garage. Ultimate Garage Floors fully prepares your concrete surface and applies its unique, multiple layer flooring system to coordinate with your individual style and design requirements. Ultimate Garage Floors offers over 200 color choices and can help you create a custom color. They claim their Epoxy Flake Flooring is chemical and stain resistant, easy to keep clean, and eliminates footprints and damage to carpet.

Better Life Technologies (BLT)

The idea of a stick-on floor is something seemingly sci-fi, but it's exactly what BLT has created. Simply peel the backing off the high-gloss vinyl tile and stick it to your concrete floor. The adhesive never dries all the way, making removal and adjusting a snap, and since it's a vinyl tile, it will not snap or crack like many tiles can. With a 5-year warranty, BLT feels confident that with minimal care and by "sticking" to their guidelines, the floor will last for several years.
